

Donor Giving Guide

2016-17
*Reunited &
Freedom from the Fight
Campaigns*

*Helping Parents So Kids
Can Be Kids*

How to Give

To pay online, go to www.cnfc.org and click on the “Giving” page. There you can choose a level of giving to our general fund or give specifically to the Reunited or Freedom from the Fight projects.

Mail your donation to P.O. Box 1016, Lawrenceville, GA 30046. Make checks payable to Center for Navigating Family Change.

“So many parents are unable to learn to co-parent even years after the divorce is finalized. We see them return to Court again and again and oftentimes, the Court is unable to satisfactorily resolve the root issues causing these ongoing litigations.”

*Chief Judge Melodie Snell Conner
Gwinnett County Superior Court*

www.cnfc.org/giving

Five Levels of Giving

DIAMOND — $5,000

Provides a year of therapeutic support.
In addition to the gifts offered at lower levels, Diamond donors also receive an engraved crystal award for office display.

PLATINUM — $2,500

Provides six months of therapeutic support.
In addition to the gifts offered at lower levels, Platinum donors also receive recognition at CNFC’s parenting classes.

GOLD — $1,500

Provides ten hours of therapeutic support.
In addition to the gifts offered at lower levels, Gold donors also receive a photo ad on CNFC’s online professional directory.

SILVER — $500

Provides ten hours of supervised visitation.
In addition to the gift offered at the Bronze level, Silver donors also receive a flash drive with the complete archive of Diane Dierks’ Co-Parenting Tips.

BRONZE — $150

Provides one hour of therapy or three hours of supervised visitation.
Bronze donors receive a copy of Diane Dierks’ workbook, The Co-Parent Tool Box: Tools for remodeling your co-parent relationship after divorce or separation.

CUSTOM DONATION

Gifts of any amount are greatly appreciated!

Freedom from the Fight

No family is perfect, but at the very least, kids deserve the freedom to grow up as children and not have to worry about adult worries before their time. Divorce and family break-ups often force kids to grow up too soon because their parents are ill-equipped to deal with their own emotions as co-parents. This program will offer valuable services on a sliding-scale basis so the parents who need help the most have the opportunity to receive:

- Co-Parent Counseling
- Communications Coaching
- Parenting Coordination

How this benefits children

CNFC professionals will teach parents how to fake respect for their co-parent's role, even when they don't feel it. In all of their communication and interaction, a business-like model is encouraged, which helps kids relax. Kids never feel good about being the reason for their parents conflict or difficulties. When parents move forward in a positive way, kids can just be kids.

Reunited

Parental alienation is a serious issue and can often create estrangement between a parent and child. These kids will often make false allegations against a parent in order to please the alienating one. This frequently results in a lengthy court case and valuable time lost for the estranged parent and child. This program offers:

- Reunification therapy for the parent/child
- Therapy to help the alienating parent to manage his/her fears about the reunification
- Supervised visitation when needed

How this benefits children

Kids usually hear two different stories from their co-parents about why they are no longer together. In alienating cases, the stories are destructive and often falsified. CNFC professionals cannot change the stories, but they can help the child get out of the middle, and stop needing to reject one parent in order to please the other. By working with the whole family, the children can be given permission to love both parents and worry only about their child world.

Kids need permission to love both of their parents, warts and all.

Most co-parents want help, but don't know how to get it.

Contact Us

Center for Navigating Family Change
440 S. Perry St.
Lawrenceville, GA 30046
(404) 592-1257
diane@cnfc.org

www.cnfc.org