

Helping Parents So Kids Can Be Kids

Program Guide

Our Mission

Our mission is to educate families and provide appropriate resources and therapeutic interventions to help them navigate the difficulties that accompany family change, such as those associated with divorce or family restructuring.

CNFC is committed to staying abreast of the latest and most relevant research that impacts families in transition. We are also committed to providing the highest quality educators, parenting coordinators, and therapists to sensitively assist parents and children in achieving success and growth in their new way of life.

What We Do

We are a 501(c)3 organization that provides Navigating Family Change, the required court-ordered basic seminar for families in transition in Gwinnett and DeKalb counties in Georgia. We also provide the seminar in Spanish and present a court-ordered Advanced Issues in Co-Parenting workshop for high conflict cases in Gwinnett County.

In addition to educating parents, CNFC therapists are trained as Parenting Coordinators, Co-Parent Counselors and Reunification Therapists to help co-parents learn valuable skills and tools to parent their children effectively without conflict.

How We Help

- Navigating Family Change Seminar (English and Spanish basic class)
- Advanced Issues in Co-Parenting (for high conflict cases)
- Co-Parent Counseling (brief/six sessions)
- Parenting Coordination (intensive assistance to prevent repeat litigation)
- Reunification Therapy (to assist estranged parents to reconnect with their children)

How to Get Started

Most clients come to us by way of a court order. Typically, parents who are getting a divorce, legitimizing a child, or modifying custody are ordered by Gwinnett and DeKalb courts to attend our basic Navigating Family Change seminar. However, anyone may attend the basic seminar by registering at www.gwinnettcourts.com/court-programs/parenting-seminar.aspx or at www.dekalbsuperiorcourt.com/parenting-seminar. The seminar is four hours long and costs $30-40 per person.

Parents who are high conflict or who have returned to the court system for a custody modification in Gwinnett County may also be ordered to our Advanced Issues in Co-Parenting Workshop. This is a closed workshop and requires a court order.

Clients who come to us for Co-Parent Counseling, Parenting Coordination, or Reunification Therapy, are initially ordered to do a Conflict Assessment with CNFC to determine what type of intervention is best for them. CNFC then recommends customized details to help each particular family get the help they need. A court order typically follows to begin the process.

It is best to speak to your attorney, if you have one, to discuss how CNFC can help. He or she can access a copy of the standard Conflict Assessment Order on our web site at www.cnfc.org/information-for-professionals to get you started on the path to healing!

Donate to Scholarships for Low-Income Families

The court process is often financially draining. Many times, parents finalize their parenting plan and do not have resources left to get valuable co-parenting assistance. CNFC understands this and is actively involved in seeking private funding and grant assistance to provide our therapeutic interventions using a sliding scale.

CNFC will provide scholarships on a first-come, first-serve basis as long as funds are available. To insure we can continue to offer these services to EVERYONE who needs them in the community, please take time to make your TAX-DEDUCTIBLE donation by visiting our web site. No child should have to worry about adult issues. Kids deserve to simply be kids!
